PREFACE

1991 Census in Arunachal Pradesh completes the fourth full-scale and third comprehensively covered census with uniform schedules at par with the rest of the country.

The Paper 1 of 1991—Provisional Population Totals of Arunachal Pradesh was brought out and released in a Press Conference at Itanagar on the 26th March, 1991. This was the first publication which was brought out on the basis of the provisional figures received from the District Census Officers of respective districts. Only a limited set of four tables were presented in that publication.

The present publication is Supplement to Paper 1 of 1991 and includes the rural and urban composition of population, number of towns, main workers, marginal workers and non-workers and also main workers with broad industrial categories at district level. In addition to that revised figures of population and literates alongwith four Provisional Population Tables (Table 1, 3, 5 and 7) for India, States and Union Territories of the country are included for the convenience of the data users.

I should caution the data users that the figures presented in this publication are provisional and no final conclusion should be drawn out of these figures till the final figures are published.

I am thankful to Shri A.R. Nanda, Registrar General and Census Commissioner of India for the close co-operation and able guidance extended to me from time to time. My thanks are also due to Shri S.R. Sarkar, former Director of Census Operations, Arunachal Pradesh under whose guidance 1991 Census was conducted and completed successfully.

I wish to thank my colleagues for their sincere co-operation and assistance in preparing this publication. The list of the names of the officers and staff of this Directorate in Census, Map and Printing sections associated with this work are given separately.

Dated Shillong, the 17th December 1991.

REVISED PROVISIONAL POPULATION AND LITERATES FOR INDIA, STATES AND UNION TERRITORIES

REVISED PROVISIONAL POPULATION TABLE

The provisional totals of population and those of literates by sex for India, States and Union Territories were released in March 25, 1991 through the publication of Paper 1 of 1991 and in some cases Paper 2 of 1991. Slightly revised figures have been obtained since the publication of the earlier paper. The revised figures are published in the present table given below for the convenience of the readers as well as the data users.

In this context it is necessary to explain the concept of literacy and the calculation of literacy rate adopted in the 1991 Census. The children in the age group 0—4* were considered as illiterates by definition in the 1981 Census. At the time of preparation for the 1991 Census, the Department of Education in the Ministry of Human Resource Development and the Planning Commission desired that in the 1991 Census, children in the age group 0—6 should be considered as illiterates since the ability to read and write with understanding is not generally achieved until child attains the age of 7 or more. Accordingly, in the 1991 Census children aged 6 years or less were considered as illiterates even if they would be going to school and might have picked up reading and writing a few odd words.

Though in the earlier Censuses the literacy rate was worked out taking into account the total population, it is felt that it would be more meaningful if one were to exclude the population in the age group 0—6 from the total population while calculating the literacy rates. In Paper 1 of 1991 the literacy rates relating to population aged 7 years and above at the country, State and Union Territory level were published basing on the estimated population aged 7 years and above at State/Union Territory level in absence of data according to the 1991 Census which would be available only through further tabulations much later. While presenting the data on literacy in this volume only absolute figures of literates have been given since estimates of population aged 7 years and above are not available now for districts, rural and urban areas. The literacy rates for those areas could be worked out when the population figures for the children in the age group 0-6 are presented in the Primary Census Abstract (PCA) after final tabulations.

As desired by the Registrar General and Census Commissioner of India, the revised tables of provisional population totals alongwith number of literates for the country, States/Union Territories are presented in this supplement for the benefit of the readers and data users.

* less than 5 years.  less than 7 years.

ANALYSIS OF RESULTS

ANALYSIS OF RESULTS

1991 Census of India has recorded 858,392 persons in Arunachal Pradesh as on the sunrise of 1st March, 1991. Arunachal Pradesh claims 24th position in terms of population among 25 States and 7 Union Territories in the country. The population of the State is unevenly distributed among its eleven districts. Lower Subansiri has claimed 18.01 per cent of the total population of the state and has emerged as the biggest district, closely followed by Lohit with 12.77 per cent. Tawang is the smallest district with 3.21 per cent of the total population of the State.

The population of the districts of Arunachal Pradesh is not proportionate to their respective areas. In terms of population Lower Subansiri ranks first followed by Lohit whereas by area, Dibang Valley with an area of 13,029 Sq.Km. ranks first, followed by Lower Subansiri with 13,010 Sq.Km. However, Tawang is the least populated districts with the lowest area of 2,172 Sq.Km.

Rural and urban composition :

Population can be broadly divided into two major streams i.e. rural and urban. Out of the total population of the State, urban population with 104,806 persons constitutes 12.21 per cent while rural population with 753,586 persons accounts for the remaining 87.79 per cent.

Out of the eleven districts, four districts do not have any urban population. During the last decade 1981-91 the decennial growth rate of rural and urban population is found to be 27.64 and 152.98 respectively. As regards the growth rate of rural population among the 11 districts, it is observed that Changlang District tops the list with its decadal growth rate of 49.32 per cent while Dibang Valley District comes at the bottom with its growth rate of 15.10 per cent. While looking at the growth rate of urban population, it will be seen that Lohit District records the highest decennial growth rate of 229.65 per cent and West Siang District the lowest with 37.45 per cent.

Cities and Towns :

The towns have been classified into six different categories on the basis of the size of population.

Towns having more than 1 lakh population and falling in Class I are termed as Cities. There are no city available in Arunachal Pradesh.

As in 1971 and 1981 Censuses, in 1991 Census also, the following definition of urban area is adopted :

- (a) All places with a municipality, corporation, cantonment board or notified town area committee, etc.
- (b) All other places which satisfy the following criteria :
 - (i) a minimum population of 5,000 ;
 - (ii) at least 75 per cent of male working population engaged in non-agricultural pursuits, and
 - (iii) a density of population of at least 400 persons per Sq. Km.

In 1991 Census, there has been addition of four more places as towns. These are Ziro, the district headquarters of Lower Subansiri District, Roing, the sub-divisional headquarters of Roing sub-division under Dibang Valley District, Namsai, the sub-divisional headquarters of Namsai sub-division under Lohit District and Khonsa, the district headquarters of Tirap District. Total number of towns in 1991 has increased from six in 1981 to ten.

NUMBER OF TOWNS ACCORDING TO SIZE CLASS

Class	Population size	Number of towns in
		1971 (3)	1981 (4)	1991 (5)
I	100,000 and above	—	—	—
II	50,000 — 99,999	—	—	—
III	20,000 — 49,999	—	—	—

	TOTAL	4(100.00)	6(100.00)	10(100.00)

From the above table, it is seen that out of 10 towns in 1991, 5 towns each fall in the size class IV and V. There is no class VI town in 1991 as were available in 1971 and in 1981 Censuses owing to the gradual increase of population in the Class VI towns of 1991 and 1981 Censuses.

The above table 2 reveals some interesting data for all the ten towns of the State. Among these, Itanagar, the Capital town of the State counts for 2.02 percent of total population as against 12.21 percent of the total urban population of the State. Bomdila town has the lowest population of 0.65 percent to the total population. While looking at the population of each town in relation to the total urban population, Itanagar town records the highest percentage (16.53 percent) of the total urban population closely followed by the population of Pasighat town (13.86 percent) whereas Bomdila town registers the lowest percentage (5.31 percent) of population to the total urban population. Each of 5 towns which fall in the size class V are having population of less than one percent to the total population.

The above table 3 depicts the sex ratio i.e. females per 1000 males of the population of Arunachal Pradesh as was in 1981 and in 1991 Census. In rural areas the sex ratio has decreased to 877 in 1991 as against 881 in 1981. Out of the eleven districts, six districts show decreasing trend of sex ratio in rural areas. The highest decline in terms of percentage is recorded as 11.27 in Tawang District and the lowest in East Siang with 0.23 percent. The decline is mainly due to the migration of male working force engaged in various projects like road construction and building constructions undertaken in different rural areas of the State. Among the five districts showing increase in sex ration in the rural areas the highest increase is noticed in Dibang Valley District (24.36 percent) and the lowest in Lower Subansiri District (0.64 percent).

In urban areas, it is seen that there has been an increase in number of females per 1000 males in 1991 for all the urban areas. The number of females per 1000 males has increased to 753 in 1991 showing an increase of 19.71 percent over the last decade 1981-91. Increasing trend is maintained by all the districts where urban population exists, the highest growth is noticed in West Siang where the number of females has stepped up to 718 in 1991 against 544 in 1981 thereby exceeding by 31.99 percent. The lowest growth is recorded by West Kameng where the number of 725 in 1981 has increased to 752 in 1991 thereby showing a percentage increase of 3.72. The increase of sex ratio in all the urban areas is mainly due to proportionately high migration of female population than its male counterpart as in the urban areas accommodation problem is less and the male migrants can bring female members with them.

Literacy :

Census collects the information on literacy as one of the most important characteristics of the population. For the purpose of Census, a person is treated as literate if he or she can read and write with understanding in any language. A person who can merely read but cannot write is not a literate. In the earlier Censuses of India, children below 5 years of age were treated as illiterates. But in 1991 Census, the question on literacy was canvassed only for population aged 7 years and above as per the decisions taken by the Ministry of Human Resource Development and the Planning Commission. In the earlier censuses it was the practice to work out the literacy rate taking into account the total population. Literacy rates would be more meaningful if one were to exclude the population in the age group 0-6 from the total population. Since the age data would take some more time to be tabulated, for the present the estimated population age 7 years and above is being taken into account to calculate the literacy rate for the State as a whole. Taking this into consideration, literacy rates among persons, males and females are worked out to be 41.22, 51.10 and 29.37 percent respectively for Arunachal Pradesh as per 1991 Census. In the Supplement Table 1 furnished in this publication, the number of literate persons with sexwise break ups and their total, rural and urban population for the State and districts are presented. Attempt were not made to calculate the districtwise literacy percentage for want of districtwise population data of aged 6 years and above at this stage.

Working Population :

One of the important characteristics on which data is collected in census is the economic activity of the population. The size of working population by different categories and their sex-wise break up for rural and urban areas are the direct reflection for the land, resources and the society and the economic patterns. Data on economic activities throws light on the economic growth of the region and is useful for socio-economic planning. Economically, the population can be divided into two main streams—workers and non-workers. A worker is a person whose main activity is participation in any economically productive work by physical or mental activity. Work involves not only actual work but also effective supervision and direction of work. The main workers are those who have worked for 183 days or more in a year in one or more than one economic activity. A person who has worked for less than 183 days in a year is considered a marginal worker. Non-workers are mainly engaged in household duties or as students or are dependents or retired persons, rentiers or beggars or inmates of charitable institutions or engaged in other non-productive economic activities.

In the data presented in this supplement, the persons have been basically categorised as main workers, marginal workers and non-workers. Data on main workers have again been divided into four categories—cultivators, agricultural labourers, workers in household industry and other workers. Supplement table 5 gives sex-wise distribution of main workers and marginal workers and their comparison in percentage with 1981 Census. With the increase in population of Arunachal Pradesh from 631,839 to 858,392 during the last decade, the main workers increased from 313,435 to 389,621 registering an increase of 76,186 workers. The proportion of main workers to total population is 45.39 percent in 1991 as compared to 49.61 percent in 1981. The fall in percentage of workers on one hand may reflect higher capacity of workers to support large number of dependents and on the other hand it may reveal the growing magnitude of unemployment.

The percentage of main workers to total population in 1991 is the highest in Tawang District with 53.72 and the lowest in Lohit with 41.51. In 1981 Census also, the proportion of main workers to total population was the highest in Tawang District (56.67 percent) and the lowest however, in Changlang District (43.26 percent). The percentage of main workers have shown a downward trend in almost all the districts in 1991 Census.

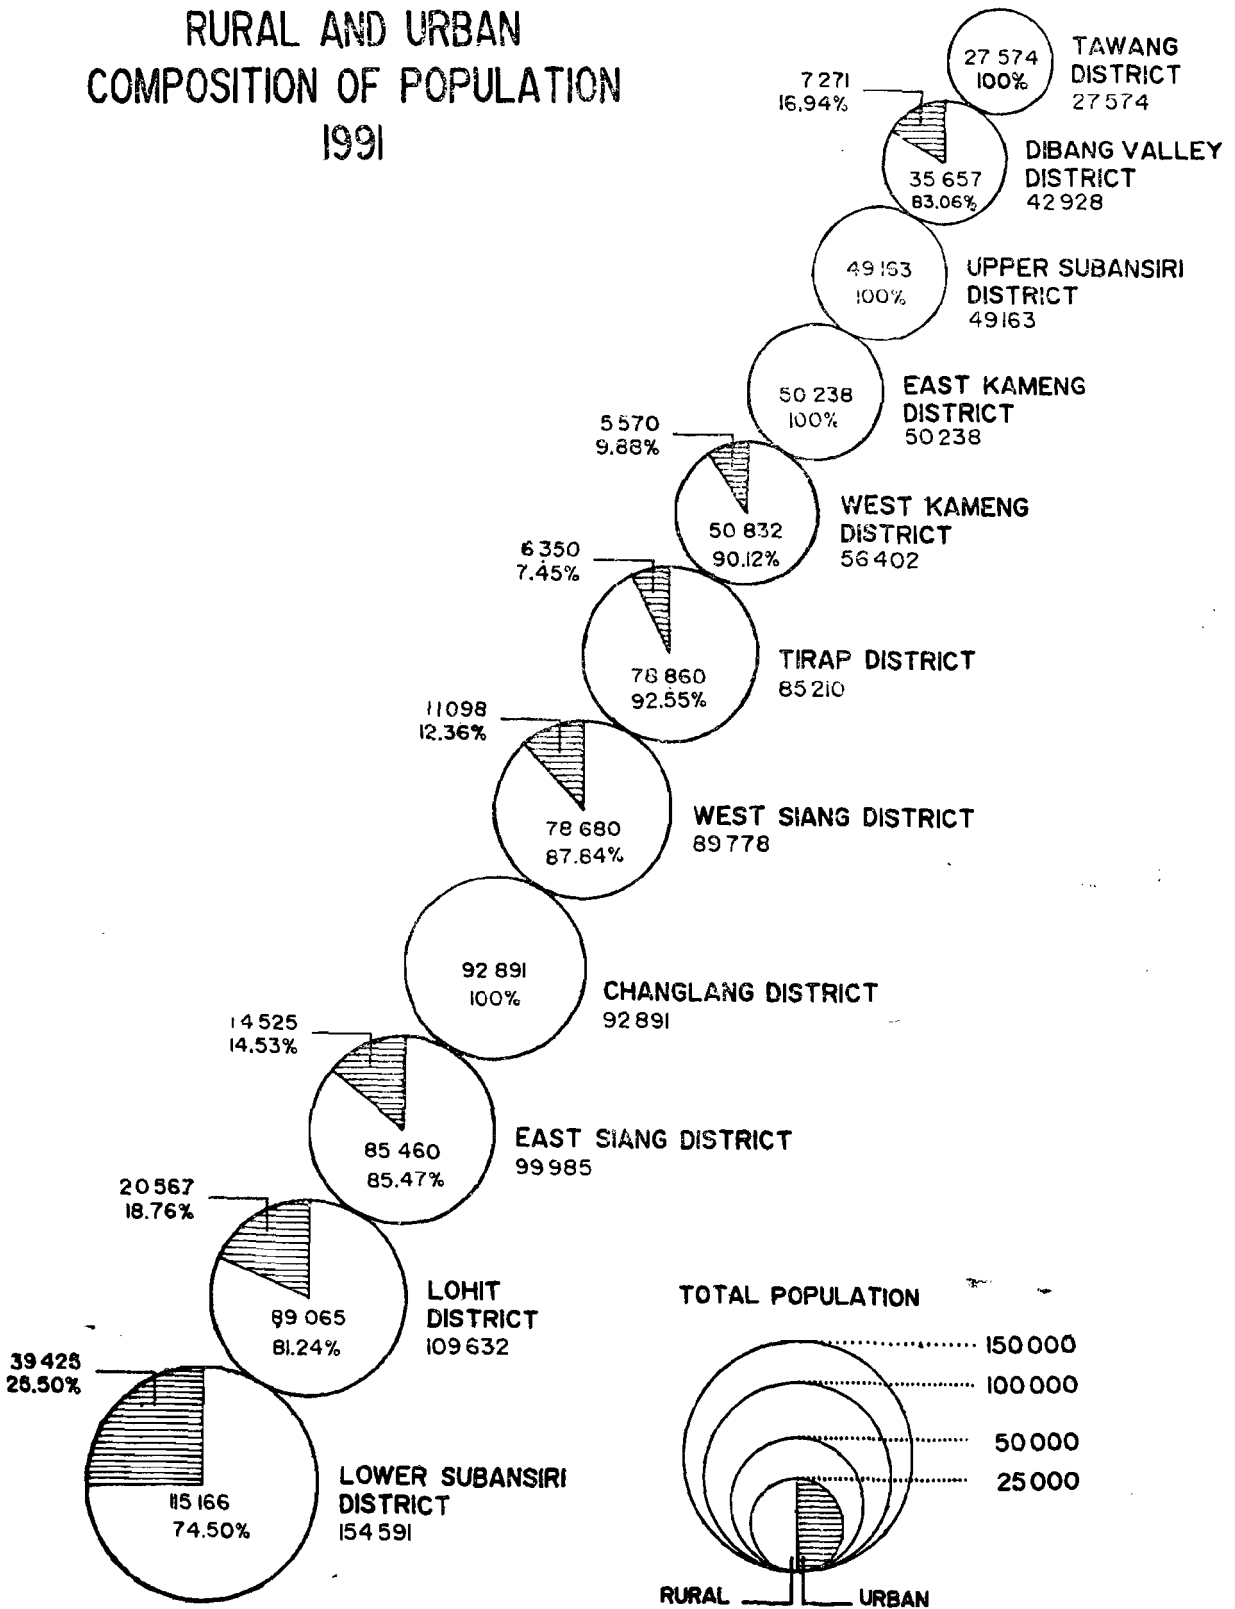

Supplement Table 6 gives the sex-wise distribution of total main workers into four categories—cultivators, agricultural labourers, household industry and other workers. The percentage of cultivators has come down from 71.26 in 1981 to 61.06 percent in 1991 where as the proportion of agricultural labourers has gone up to 4.90 percent in 1991 from 2.49 percent in 1981. The percentage of main workers in household industry is 0.64 in 1991 in comparison to 0.32 in 1981. Other workers register 33.40 percent of the main workers in 1991 in relation to 25.93 in 1981. This shows a gradual shift from agricultural to non-agricultural activities. The magnitude and direction of shift from agriculture to non-agriculture pursuits and the role of various other factors need to be investigated.

The highest proportion of cultivators is registered in East Kameng District with 77.35 percent and the lowest with 37.96 percent in Dibang Valley District. The proportion of agricultural labourers is the highest in Dibang Valley District with 18.10 percent and the lowest in Tirap District with 0.44 percent. The main workers in household industry with 1.76 percent shows the maximum in Dibang Valley and 0.14 percent being the lowest recorded in Tirap District. In the category of other workers, the highest percentage is registered by West Kameng District with 52.86 percent and the lowest by East Kameng District with 20.86 percent.

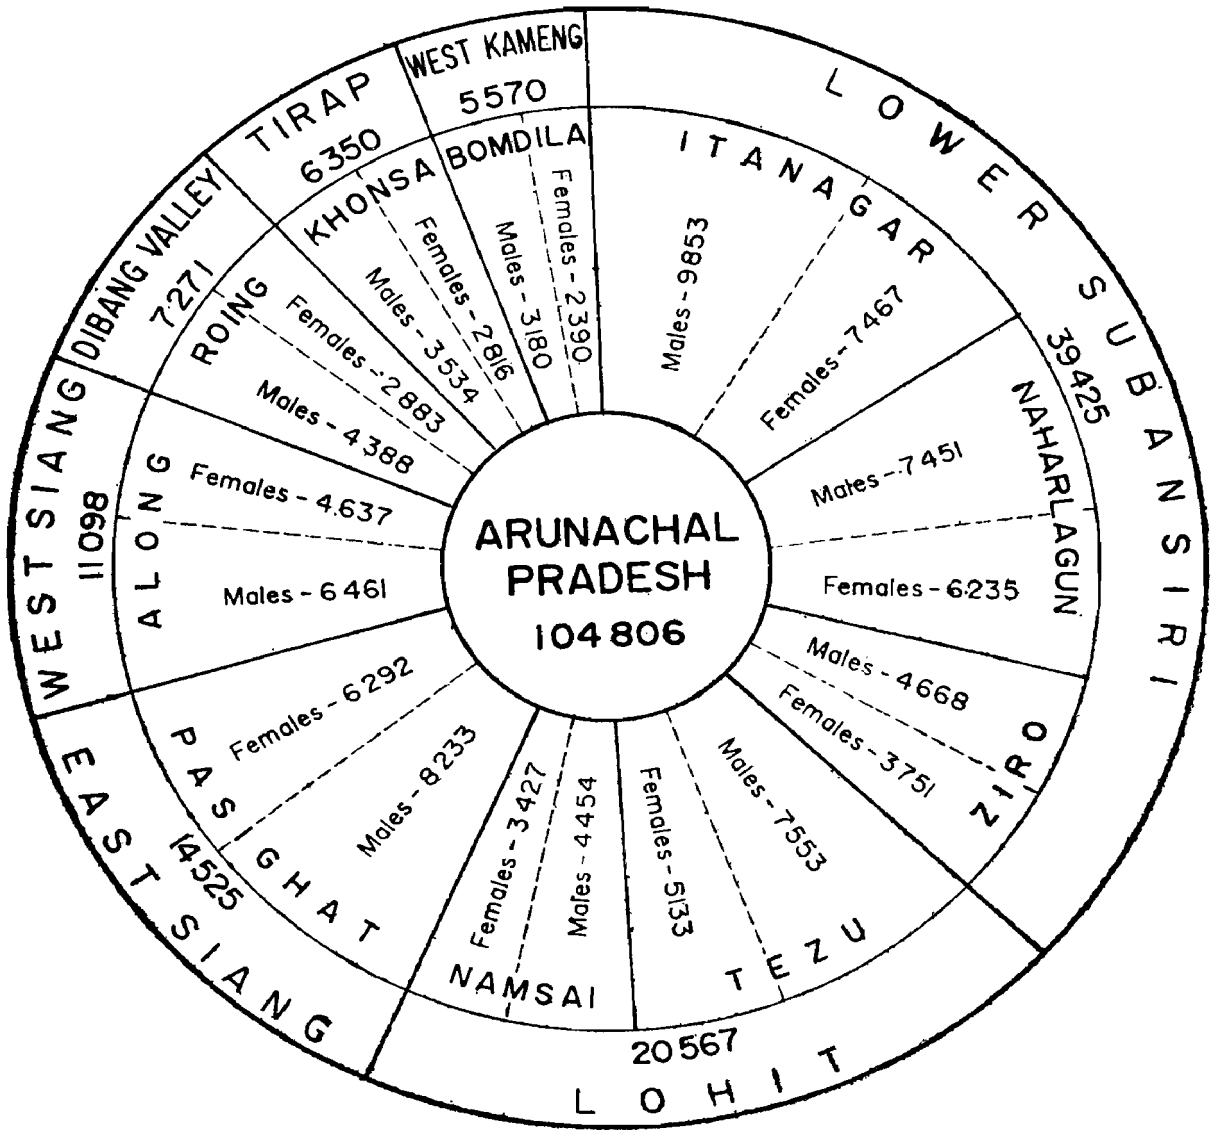

Till the final Primary Census Abstract figures are finalised, it may be difficult to draw any conclusion on the basis of the Provisional Population figures.
